

Our Contributors

MIRANDA VILLIERS is a freelance writer and spent some years in Romania when her husband was posted there by the British Council.

LUCIAN BLIT is lecturer in East European Political Institutions at the London School of Economics and Political Science and at the School of Slavonic and East European Studies.

VICTOR HAYWARD is the research secretary of the China Study Project, based at the Selly Oak Colleges, Birmingham.

CANON A. M. ALLCHIN is a Canon of Canterbury Cathedral, chairman of the Council of the Fellowship of St. Alban and St. Sergius, editor of Sobornost and member of the Anglican-Orthodox theological commission.

CHRISTOPHER CVIIC (who contributed to issue No. 2) writes on Eastern Europe and Church affairs for the Economist.